MELLEN ASKS LEGISLATION. Needs of New Haven Road Outlined to

Connecticut Lawmakers. HARTFORD, Conn., March 30.-President Charles P. Mellen of the New Haven road appeared before the Joint Railroad Committee of the Connecticut General Assembly to-day, and so great was the throng to hear what he had to say about the needs of the New Haven road as outlined in proposed. legielation that the hearing was in the hall of the House of Representatives.

He told the legislators that much which his company needed of additional legis lation it might be obliged to do without. Much that the legislators would likely act unfavorably upon, pertaining to amendments to the railroad law of Connecticut would very much contribute to the disadvantage of the people of the State because it would handicap the m st efficient transportation agency in Connecticut. He cautioned the Sanators and Repres-

He cautioned the Senators and Representatives to be prepared in the end to foot the bill themselves and to cease complaining as a result of their own folly, after acting adversely on vital measures affecting the railroads of Connecticut. All the legislation asked by President Mellen was to improve the service.

Speaking about the necessities of the Consolidated Railway, the company that controls the lines in this State, he said that there were 400 miles of electric lines in the State now consolidated into one company.

State now consolidated into one company. Much of the legislation asked by the road would develop the electric roads.

The Consolidated desired the right to acquire available water power for furnishing electrical power needed in operating the company's lines and needed the right also to eliminate the interests of dissenting stockholders. also to eliminate the interests of dissenting stockholders upon terms and conditions most liberal and protect the company from blackmail. The railroad laws of Connecticut needed readjustment to be in conformity with the laws of other States. In Connecticut, owing to the misuse of cars under the demurrage law, the State was seriously discriminated against and the community suffered grievously from such short sightedness. President Mellen alluded to a recent survey across Con-necticut made, as he said, at the instance of a foreign corporation to connect up its lines. He thought this was a threat or a danger to the New Haven road.
